Grained Leather

Our grained leathers feature a subtle textured finish to the surface and remain a popular choice for restoration projects.

The naturally occurring variations in shade and texture across the surface of the hide gives an authentic appearance that betters with age, whilst the grained finish enhances with creasing and blemishes that naturally develop with use.

Smooth Leather

With no graining effect applied during manufacture, our smooth leather hides are most akin to original specification leather used in classic cars up until the mid 1960's. For this reason, it remains the leather of choice for high end and luxury restorations.

The smooth surface finish shows naturally occurring variations, blemishes and imperfections, making this a characterful & very beautiful leather.

Antiqued Leather

Antiqued leather was used on original factory production lines to meet the demand for aged-looking leather, and is still used today. To achieve the look, grained hides are over-printed with black dye to give an authentic mottled effect to the surface.

Antique leather remains a popular choice for restorers looking to re-create a vintage worn-in feel.

Swatch Service

With extensive material & colour options, we know there's nothing quite like a sample in hand to help you in your decision. That's why we offer a free worldwide sample service. We can provide swatch cuttings for all of our materials, including bindings and pipings. Please contact us to request samples for your restoration project.

All swatches displayed on this card are subject to batch shade variations. Although minimal in most cases, we always recommend you receive swatch samples before placing an order with us. Larger sample cuttings are available on request.

Our online material & colour library is a comprehensive resource to help inform your interior fabric choices. You can also learn more about each material and how we structure our library in accordance with original factory production lines. To browse our swatches online, please visit us at www.john-skinner.co.uk.
